

Via E-Mail

July 2003

Breakthrough Tendon Repair System Earns FDA Approval

Orlando-based Ortheon Medical has received FDA clearance for sales and marketing of its breakthrough tendon repair system, Teno Fix™. Utilizing a patented technology, Teno Fix marks the first use of a surgical anchor system in soft tissue repair and could forever change the way orthopedic and plastic reconstructive surgeons repair torn and damaged tendons. The system has the potential to provide quicker recovery time and to reduce the need for repeat surgeries associated with standard suturing techniques. With the aid of a matching research grant from the Florida High Tech Corridor, additional uses for this new tendon repair system are being analyzed at the University of Central Florida. For more information, visit www.ortheon.com.

FLORIDA
high tech
Corridor

An economic development initiative of:

